

Dear FCC Commissioners:

I am outraged at the flagrant abuse of the public airwaves by Sinclair, a company that seems to think it is free to misuse public broadcast property to further its private agenda of political slander in the name of "journalism."

This is a classic example of why more stringent rules of media ownership and fairness are needed. Companies like Sinclair are becoming little more than private propaganda mills operating at the public's expense.

I urge to you take action against Sinclair for its utter failure to carry out its duty to serve the communities in which it does business.

Sincerely,

Bruce Jacobs
Baltimore, MD
